In the years ahead this book will be our link with the past. It will serve to remind us that through the sincere dedication of our teachers, our own serious application to studies, and our participation in extra curricular and social activities offered here at Tenney High, our minds have been broadened, our characters strengthened, and our lives enriched. We are now prepared to go forth with a sense of accomplishment and a desire for fulfillment.

I would like to express my appreciation to Mr. Lister, our advisor, for his invaluable assistance, and to the entire Torch staff for their sincere efforts in helping me recall many of these memories.

In Memoriam

We of Tenney High shall always remember Walter Beverly Ingalls, late Superintendent of Schools, for what he was to us. Although he was not famous by the world's standards, his sincerity and dedication to our school system as a teacher, guidance counselor and superintendent is a memory of which we should all be proud.

MR. WALTER B. INGALLS

In the service of the Methuen Public Schools from Sept. 1931 to July 20, 1965.

For ten years Mrs. Frances Richardson was a part of the life and spirit of Tenney High. During these years as a teacher of French, Mrs. Richardson was more than a faculty member—she was a friend. Her presence will be sadly missed by all who knew and admired her, but her memory will live on within us.

MRS. FRANCES RICHARDSON

In the service of the Methuen Public Schools from Sept. 1953 to July 21, 1965.

Martha D. Lange

A friend to her students,
A teacher outstanding,
Her efforts were aimed
At always demanding
The best from each pupil
Who came to her class.
She'd do all she could
To help everyone pass.
She'd have before school
A short practice session.
Her wit and her patience
Made quite an impression
On faculty, parents, and all whom she taught.
To do more than her job
Was all that she sought.
She now is retired,
A rest she has earned,
For from having her with us
There's much we have learned.
We've learned how to study
Yet how to find pleasure
By making the most
Of our moments of leisure.

So we'd now like to dedicate
This yearbook to you
And wish you God's blessing
In all that you do.
You have given us much
And you'll long be remembered
For your kindness, your friendship,
Your time to us rendered.
We hope that this yearbook
To you now imparts
The knowledge that we
Hold you close to our hearts.
We thank you once more
For the work that you've done
To make schooldays fruitful
And yet make them fun.
We pray God will guide you,
And to you his love send,
For you weren't just a teacher,
But also a friend.

You are living in a pivotal generation and can play a vital part in determining which way we shall turn. On the one hand, we see glimpses of the wonders that may be ours through the relieving of human bondage, while, on the other hand, we are confronted by the spectre of indescribable carnage involved in modern war and by the militant voices of both the Left and Right which press for their forms of totalitarianism.

If we, the people of this universe, are to live full, bountiful lives, then needed desperately today is the inquisitive mind in the courageous body. Needed too, are new patterns of thinking which will bring into being the unimpassioned, decent resolving of human conflict.

Do you care? Where do you stand? What are you going to do about it? These may be the most important questions of the day for all humanity.

Would you believe TWO more miles?

Not another crash!

Is that English Leather?

Just a minute—I'll check my calendar

Slowly I turn, step by step . . .

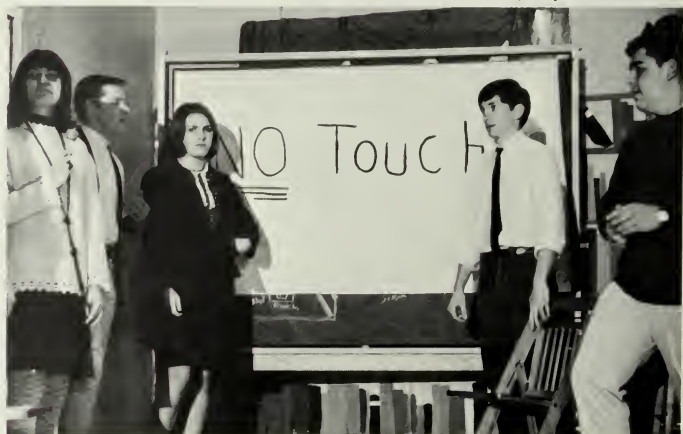

What do you mean, we're out of pomegranates?

Don't step on me, Jolly Green Giant!

But, Miss Chadwick, you told us not to wear short skirts!

What nerve! A test on a Monday!

Don't clap, just throw money!

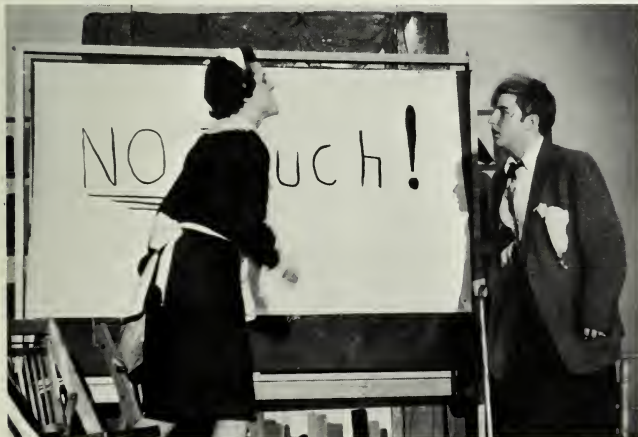

Now be a good bomb, and don't go away!

Did you catch her serial number?

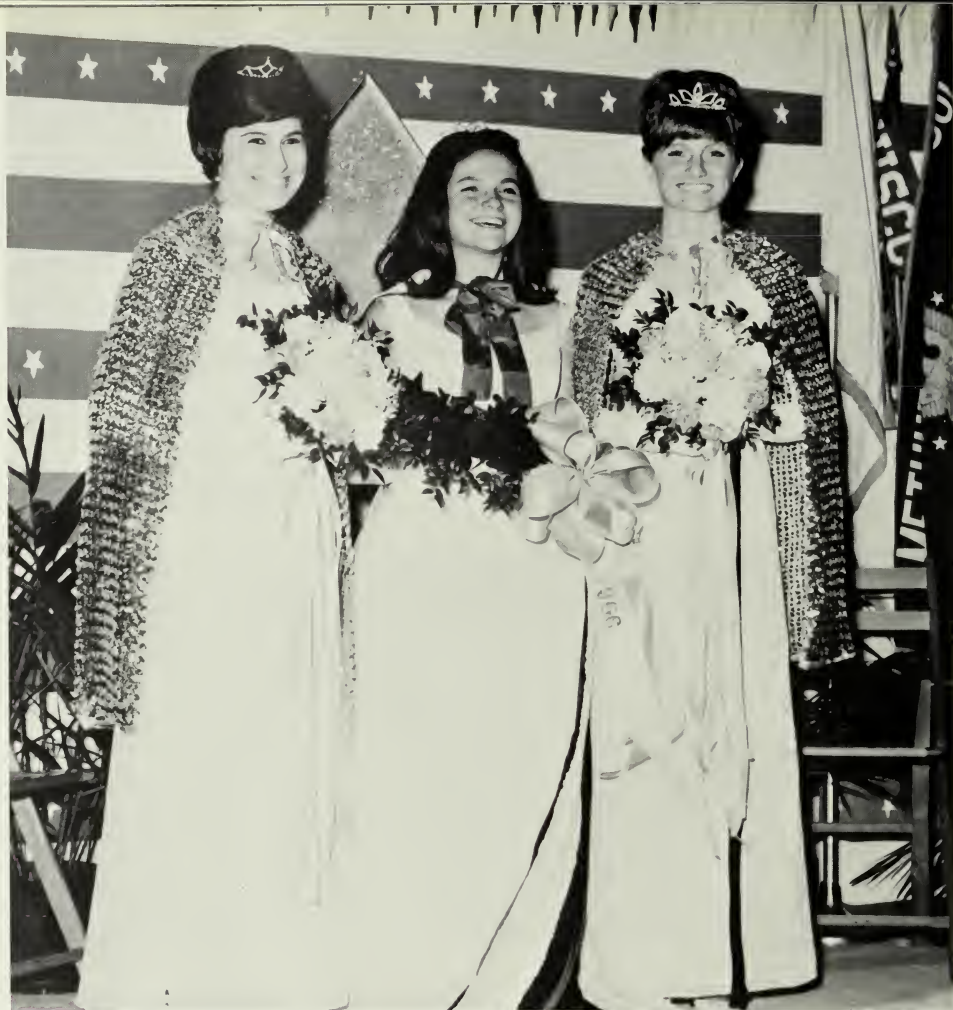

And after we raid the cafe . . .

Enunciate, my young man

Put them all together they spell Mother 113

On February 25th we were all in the gym.
The ceiling was crepe, and the lights—
they were dim.
Outside the wind howled, and the snow
softly (?) fell.
But from inside the building, nobody could tell.
The ball went as scheduled in spite of the snow,
And now the cadets were lined up in a row.
The drill competition was keen and exciting.
The whole atmosphere was extremely inviting.
The queen and attendants were beautifully
dressed,
And happiness shone on the face of each guest.

The grand march came next, with swords being arched
And through them the happy underclassmen marched.
The dancing began, led by Lee and Coleen.
Such pleasure filled faces have never been seen.
The movie, the banquet, the talent, the fun.
It seemed that the ball had only begun
When it drew to a close and the night was then passed.
But we knew that the memories forever
would last.
We walked out the door taking one long
last stare
At the night that was precious to all who were there.
